Public Travel Advisory on Nipah Virus

Although no Nipah virus infections have been detected in Myanmar to date, special emphasis is being placed on Nipah virus disease surveillance activities as the region is home to a large number of fruit bats or flying foxes, which are the host species, and shares borders with neighbouring countries where infections frequently occur.

- Therefore, the public should avoid unnecessary visits to areas where the Nipah virus is currently spreading (for example, India, West Bengal State).
- Those currently in areas where the disease is occurring should avoid unnecessary visits to hospitals in affected areas or places with high numbers of sick individuals.
- Those who have recently travelled to areas where the disease is occurring and experience suspected symptoms such as severe fever and headache, cough and difficulty breathing, confusion, or drowsiness upon returning to their country must promptly report to the airport health department or on-duty health staff at border entry and exit points without fail.
- If one suffers from any of the aforementioned suspected symptoms within 14 days of returning from an affected area, it is necessary to immediately contact the nearest health department and be sure to inform the doctor regarding the travel history to the affected area so that one can receive the necessary test and treatment promptly.
- If family members returning from affected countries show suspected symptoms, or if unusual animal deaths (pigs and bats) are observed in the environment, immediately notify the nearest health department.

Residents Urged to Prioritize Public Safety Amid Armed Terrorist Threats

ARMED terrorists have been launching attacks by using residential homes and administrative buildings in towns and villages as cover, where they have forcibly settled. They aim to shield themselves from Tatmadaw counterattacks while also persuading temporarily displaced persons to return to their native areas and recruiting new members. That enables terrorists to use civilians as human shields. Tatmadaw is committed to safeguarding the sovereignty of the State and will respond to these threats based on intelligence and prevailing conditions. Therefore, residents in areas where terrorists have taken control must prioritize their safety and protect themselves from being exploited by these groups.

They included six Ethiopians, four South Africans, four Nepalis, two Burundians, and one each from Sierra Leone, Malawi, Nigeria, Tanzania, Zimbabwe, and Togo, bringing the total number to 22.

To ensure that the transfer process proceeded smoothly and systematically, Chairman of the Myawady District Management and Administration Committee and District Administrator, U Kaung San Lin, together with responsible officials, coordinated with relevant departments to verify the lists and ensure the accuracy and completeness of records.

Following this, a formal hand-over ceremony was held. It was attended by the Head of the District Immigration and Population Office, Deputy Director U Kyaw

Kyaw Than, embassy staff from Nepal in Thailand, including Mr Sajal Shakya, representatives from the embassies of Ethiopia, South Africa, Burundi, Sierra Leone, Malawi, Nigeria, Tanzania, Zimbabwe, and Togo, led by Mr Tana Judah Hira, as well as officials from the Tak Province Immigration Office of Thailand. At the same time, authorities are coordinating efforts to swiftly repatriate distressed foreign nationals and victims of human trafficking to their respective countries. — MNA/KZL

The theme of this year’s Myanmar Health Research Conference is “Better Health through Medical Research”.

The Ministry of Health has been increasing research funding on an annual basis to further strengthen research activities. In the 2025-2026 financial year, research funding totalling K1,500 million through the collaborative participation of relevant departments. As the enhancement of the country’s healthcare system also depends on the research capacity of its citizens, the ministry will continue to provide support for the further development and strengthening of research activities.

Research findings will be generated from the presented research papers, research posters, and academic plenary sessions. In addition to enhancing the knowledge and capacity of those working in the health sector, the research findings will enable the effective application of sound methods to help citizens live longer and healthier lives.

At the 54th congress, a total of 71 research papers and 45 research posters are scheduled to be submitted for presentation and display. The sound and evidence-based findings emerging from health research congresses will greatly support the formulation of health policies that are relevant and appropriate to national conditions, enhance the effectiveness and impact of health service delivery, and contribute to the implementation of major initiatives aimed at ensuring that everyone has access to quality health care.

Research findings will be generated from the presented research papers, research posters, and academic plenary sessions. In addition to enhancing the knowledge and capacity of those working in the health sector, the research findings will enable the effective application of sound methods to help citizens live longer and healthier lives.

Thanks to the conference, it will be possible to identify and address public health problems by practically applying the robust, evidence-based research findings obtained from the conference. Therefore, the 54th conference, which will enable the continuous conduct of high-quality research that meets international standards and adheres to research ethics, serves as a reliable forum for the health of the entire nation.

was approved for 150 research projects. At this year’s conference, research findings from studies previously conducted with Ministry of Health research funding are being submitted and presented in the form of research papers and posters.

At health research congresses, the research findings and analyses presented by researchers, along with the sharing of experiences, knowledge, and recommendations by medical professionals and administrators, are of critical importance for policy-making, management, service delivery, and the development of the health sector.

To address the key health issues that require priority attention at the national level, nationwide health surveys capable of generating evidence-based research findings must be conducted annually

HUMAN behaviour is a mosaic. We often talk about people as if they can be reduced to a single trait—“she’s confident”, “he’s timid”, “they’re eccentric”—but psychology reminds us that each of us is a shifting constellation of tendencies. In everyday life, these traits show up not as clinical labels but as the small, recognizable ways we move through the world.

Autonomy, for example, is simply the desire to steer our own ship. Some people need space to make decisions, to think, to breathe. They are not being difficult; they are protecting their sense of self. Psychology sees autonomy as a core human need, not a luxury. When it is respected, people flourish. When it is denied, they shrink.

Diversity is not just about

The Everyday Psychology of Being Human: Autonomy, Diversity, Oddness, Confidence, Timidity and Everything In Between

By Khin Maung Myint

ethnicity or culture. It is the everyday reality that no two minds work the same way. One person thrives in noise; another needs silence. One loves routine; another seeks novelty. Diversity is the natural state of human psychology. The challenge is not to make everyone the same, but to make room for the many ways of being human.

Then there are the traits we often whisper about.

Some people are odd or eccentric—not in the dramatic sense, but in the gentle way they see the world slightly differently. They ask unusual questions, follow unusual paths, or simply refuse to blend in. Psychology tells us that eccentricity often comes from creativity, independence, or a refusal to perform for social approval. These are not flaws; they are forms of courage.

Others are reserved. They speak less, observe more, and reveal themselves slowly. In a noisy world, their quietness is often misunderstood as aloofness. Yet many reserved people are simply processing deeply. Their silence is not emptiness; it is depth.

Some are obliging, the ones who say yes even when tired. They smooth conflicts, carry emotional weight, and keep the peace. Psychology recognizes this as agreeableness—a strength that can become a burden when it is exploited. The obliging person deserves the same care they offer others.

Then we meet the overcon- fidant—those who stride into rooms with certainty, sometimes more certainty than accuracy. Overconfidence is not arrogance; it is often a shield against insecurity or a habit learned from environments that reward boldness over reflection. Psychology sees it as a bias, not a moral failing.

And of course, there is flirting—that playful dance of attention and curiosity. Flirting is not always romantic; sometimes it is simply the human desire to feel seen, valued, or alive. It is a social behaviour rooted in connection.

On the other end of the spectrum is the timid person, who hesitates before stepping forward. Timidity is not weakness. It is often the result of past experiences, temperament, or a nervous system that feels the world more intensely. Psychology teaches us that timidity can coexist with bravery; courage is not the absence of fear but the decision to act despite it.

When we look at these traits through the lens of psychology, a simple truth emerges:

Human behaviour is not a set of fixed categories. It is a living, breathing negotiation between personality, experience, culture, and context.

A person may be autonomous at work but obliging at home. Eccentric with friends but timid in crowds. Overconfident in one moment and deeply unsure in the next. We are not static beings; we are dynamic stories.

The real task is not to judge these traits but to understand them—first in others, and then in ourselves. When we recognize the psychological roots of everyday behaviour, we become more patient, more curious, and more compassionate.

In the end, the beauty of being human lies in this complexity. We are all a little odd, a little timid, a little confident, a little reserved. We are mixtures, not labels. And the more we honour that truth, the kinder our world becomes.

AI could reshape jobs globally by 2030, asserts WEF white paper

ARTIFICIAL Intelligence (AI) is set to profoundly reshape global labour markets by the end of the decade, with outcomes ranging from productivity booms to widespread job displacement, according to a new World Economic Forum (WEF) white paper released this month.

In Four Futures for Jobs in the New Economy: AI and Talent in 2030, the Forum outlined four plausible scenarios for how AI advancement and workforce readiness could interact to transform jobs, value chains and economic growth. The report drew insights from the Forum’s Chief Strategy Officers Community and global foresight experts.

Survey data cited in the paper highlighted deep uncertainty among business leaders. Around 54 per cent of executives globally expect AI to displace existing jobs, while only 24 per cent believe it will create new ones.

Nearly 45 per cent anticipate rising profit margins from AI adoption, but just 12 per cent expect higher wages, suggesting productivity gains may not translate evenly into higher wages for workers.

The Forum stressed that technology alone will not determine the future of work.

Technology alone will not define the future of work. Instead, today’s investments in people will be the deciding factor. These human capital strategies determine how well businesses and societies adapt.

EDUCATION is often spoken of as a right, but in reality, it is much more than that. It is a quiet promise made to every child, every learner, and every dreamer – that their future can be shaped, strengthened, and given direction. On International Day of Education, the world is invited to pause and reflect not only on classrooms and textbooks, but on the deeper meaning of learning itself and the role it plays in shaping individuals, communities, and nations.

Education begins long before a child learns to read or write. It begins with curiosity – the simple questions children ask about the world around them. Why is the sky blue? Why do people speak different languages? Why do some people struggle while others succeed? Education nurtures these questions and teaches learners how to search for answers thoughtfully and responsibly. It is not merely about passing exams or earning certificates; it is about learning how to think, how to understand, and how to live with purpose.

In many parts of the world, education is taken for granted. Schools are accessible, resources are plentiful, and learning is seen as a natural stage of life. Yet for millions of children and adults, education remains a distant hope rather than a daily reality. Poverty, conflict, geographical barriers, and social inequality continue to prevent learners from entering or completing school. On this international day, it is important to remember that education is not equally distributed and that access to learning is still a challenge that demands global attention and shared responsibility.

Teachers stand at the heart of education. Often working quietly behind the scenes, they shape lives in ways that cannot be measured by grades alone. A teacher may be the first person to recognize a child’s talent, the first to offer encouragement, or the first to listen when a student feels unheard. In many communities, teachers do far more than teach lessons; they become mentors, counsellors, and role models. Their patience, dedication, and belief in their students create safe spaces where learning can truly happen.

Education also teaches values that go beyond academic knowledge. It helps learners develop empathy, respect, and responsibility. Through education, individuals learn to appreciate diversity, understand different perspectives, and coexist peacefully. In a world where misunderstandings and divisions are common, education offers a powerful tool for building bridges rather than walls. It encourages dialogue instead of conflict and understanding instead of fear.

The modern world is changing rapidly, and education must evolve alongside it. Technology has transformed the way people learn, connect, and share information. Online classrooms, digital resources, and global communication have opened new doors for learners who were once limited by distance or circumstance. At the same time, these changes remind us that education is not only about technology, but about guidance – helping learners use information wisely, think critically, and remain grounded in human values.

Lifelong learning has become more important than ever. Education no longer ends with graduation; it continues throughout life. Adults return to learning to gain new skills, adapt to changing careers, or simply to grow intellectually and personally. This ongoing journey of learning empowers individuals to remain active participants in society and to face new challenges with confidence. International Day of Education celebrates not only students in classrooms, but learners of all ages who continue to seek knowledge. For communities, education is a foundation for development. Educated individuals are better equipped to contribute positively to society, support their families, and participate in community life. Education helps reduce poverty, improve health, and promote social stability. When one child receives a quality education, the benefits extend far beyond that individual, influencing families, neighbourhoods, and future generations.

Parents also play a vital role in education. Their encouragement, involvement, and support shape a child’s attitude towards learning. A simple act – listening to a child read, asking about their school day, or celebrating small achievements – can leave a lasting impact. Education thrives best when schools, families, and communities work together, sharing responsibility for nurturing young minds.

Despite its many benefits, education faces ongoing challenges. Overcrowded classrooms, limited resources, and unequal opportunities continue to affect learning outcomes. Teachers often work under difficult conditions, while students struggle with pressure, uncertainty, or lack of support. Recognizing these challenges is not a sign of failure, but a call to action. International Day of Education reminds us that improving education requires continuous effort, investment, and compassion.

Education is also deeply personal. For many, it represents hope – a way to break cycles of hardship and open doors that once seemed closed. It gives individuals a voice and the confidence to express their ideas. Education allows people to dream not only for themselves, but for a better future for others. In this sense, education is an act of faith in humanity’s potential.

As the world observes International Day of Education, it is an opportunity to renew our commitment to learning for all. Governments, educators, families, and individuals each have a role to play in protecting and strengthening education systems. Supporting teachers, ensuring access for every learner, and promoting inclusive and meaningful education are responsibilities that cannot be postponed.

Education does not change the world overnight, but it changes people – and people change the world. Every lesson taught, every question asked, and every mind opened contributes to a larger story of progress and possibility. On this day, we honour not only schools and institutions but the human spirit that seeks knowledge, understanding, and growth.

International Day of Education is ultimately a celebration of hope. Hope that every child will have the chance to learn. Hope that education will continue to light the way through uncertainty. And hope that through learning, humanity can move towards a future defined by wisdom, compassion, and shared understanding.

The XIII ASEAN Para Games were held in Bangkok and Nakhon Ratchasima (Korat), Thailand, from 20 to 26 January 2026. Representing Myanmar, the Myanmar Para-athletes team, led by Major General Hla Moe, President of the Parasports Federation competed in 11 sports disciplines and won 20 golds, 19 silvers, and 20 bronzes, a total of 59 medals.

The Myanmar Para-athletes team ranked 6th among the 10 ASEAN countries and brought honour to the nation through their sporting achievements. The athletes returned to Yangon this evening, where officials and the public warmly welcomed them at Yangon International Airport. The team and officials were greeted with joy and congratulations for their achievement and for bringing national prestige through their medals.

The expressions of joy and pride of the nationally honoured para-athletes and the officials are as follows.

Maj-Gen Hla Moe (President of the Parasports Federation)

As the Myanmar Paralympic Committee, we sent 97 athletes to compete in 11 sports disciplines at the 13th ASEAN Para Games. The team won 20 gold, 19 silver, and 20 bronze medals, a total of 59 medals, placing Myanmar sixth among participating countries.

Since 2008, the Committee has worked to improve medal counts by implementing administrative reforms, changes in coaching methods, and enhanced training programs, resulting in noticeable progress. In particular, in volleyball, the team exceeded the gold medal expectations compared to previous competitions. Thanks to intensified training in 2024, the athletes were able to achieve more gold medals than anticipated, surpassing the host nation, which is a source of great pride.

In football, although the team defeated other countries, they lost to the host by one goal and received only a silver medal. In athletics, the target was 14 golds, but the team won 11. In swimming, the target was 4 golds, but the team won 8. For the other sports, athletes received various silver and bronze medals.

The athletes trained systematically under a programme based on military-style discipline, as they are also members of the Tatmadaw. Success relies on training: expertise builds confidence, confidence builds courage, and courage leads to victory. Following this motto, the athletes trained diligently and were able to bring honour to Myanmar.

As a result, the Myanmar Paralympic Committee proudly secured 59 medals, including 20 golds, at the XIII ASEAN Para Games, elevating the nation's prestige in the field of sports.

Nyi Nyi Lin Htet (Swimming, 4 gold medallists)

I won four gold medals in swimming events: the 200 metre, 100 metre, and 50 metre freestyle and the 50 metre breaststroke. This success was achieved by strictly following the coaches' guidance throughout the competition. The main rival was the host country, Thailand, and I am extremely proud to have surpassed them and secured the gold medals for the nation. I am ready to continue training and competing in future events to win more medals and bring honour to the country.

Wai Yan Min (Football, silver medallist)

In the football tournament, where a team of seven players competed, we won four matches, drew 1 match, and reached the final. In the final, we lost to the host country, Thailand, by 1-0, and therefore won the silver medal. As a lesson from the competition, we learned not to underestimate opponents and to play with even more effort and determination next time. Although we did not win the gold, I am proud on behalf of the whole team to have secured the silver medal for the country.

Aung Myint Myat (Swimming, gold medallist)

I competed in swimming events. I won 1 bronze medal in the 200 metre freestyle, 1 bronze medal in the 100-metre freestyle, and one gold medal in the 50-metre butterfly. To achieve this success, I trained for nearly eight months with the Paralympic Committee. I am extremely proud that I won the gold medal exactly as promised before leaving for the competition.

It was not easy to surpass the host countries, the Philippines, Indonesia, and Malaysia, but I pushed myself with the determination to win gold for the country, and that effort paid off. Am I satisfied? Not completely, since I didn't win all the gold medals. However, it has given me the motivation to try even harder. I have also decided to improve my training system and methods further. I am extremely proud knowing that the country will appropriately reward our achievements, just as it did last year.

Sithu Htet (Athletics, gold medallist)

I won gold in the javelin throw and silver in the shot put in athletics events. I am extremely proud and overjoyed because, after two years of hard training for this competition, I was able to achieve the greatest goal I had ever wanted in my life.

I would also like to sincerely thank everyone who supported us along the way. I am grateful to the Yangon chief minister, who presented awards to our team at the airport.

Yan Lin Aung (Sitting Volleyball, gold medallist)

We won the gold after surpassing strong countries such as Thailand, Indonesia, and the Philippines. It had been a long time since our team had held gold. The feeling of having overcome the host country and other strong nations is an incomparable joy and pride.

We are determined to work even harder from now on. In the competitions next year, we also aim to defend our current championship.

I sincerely thank everyone, and a special thanks goes to the Myanmar fans who supported us.

Zaw Moe Aung (Sitting Volleyball, gold medallist)

Among all the competitions I have participated in, this one has been the happiest moment of my life because we won the gold fairly and deservedly. Following the guidance of the organizers and coaches, we competed as instructed, and by surpassing some of the strongest countries, we were able to win the gold medal for the nation. As a volleyball player, I am deeply proud and overjoyed to regain a gold that had been missing since 1990, in 2026, and I sincerely thank the national leaders and all responsible officials. As the Myanmar Paralympic Sports Federation, our athletes have achieved the following gold medals in ASEAN Para Games for the honour of Tatmadaw and the nation: 36 golds in 2001 (Malaysia), 24 in 2003, 29 in 2005, 12 in 2008, 8 in 2009, 11 in the VI Games (Indonesia), 34 in 2014 (Nay Pyi Taw, VII Games), 16 in 2015, 11 in 2017, no participation in the X Games, 14 in 2022 (XI Games), 15 in 2023, and 20 in 2026 (XIII Games). Through these achievements, Myanmar Paralympic athletes have brought honour to Tatmadaw and the nation. — KZL

Kyonkapyin-Tapseik becomes winter haven for endangered yellow-breasted buntings

HUNDREDS of thousands of yellow-breasted buntings, a species at risk of extinction, have arrived to winter in the Kyonkapyin-Tapseik Conservation Group (KTCG)’s area, one of its members told the Global New Light of Myanmar.

These birds require urgent conservation efforts, said environmentalists. According to the KTCG, only about 3,000 of these birds were recorded in the first survey, but that number has surged to hundreds of thousands this year.

“The yellow-breasted bunting, a rare endangered species, has arrived for the winter. We’ve observed them returning annually in recent years. They migrate here from abroad. Our initial surveys recorded just over 3,000 birds, but the population has grown steadily to hundreds of thousands,” he stated.

They live in eastern Europe, northern Asia, and Russia. Every winter, they migrate in flocks to southern Asian countries, including Myanmar, typically arriving around October.

Currently, more than 100 bird species, including various rare types, inhabit this area. The KTCG is inviting nature enthusiasts and bird watchers to observe these beautiful guests, the coexistence of local farmers and diverse wildlife, fishermen, and the community-led conservation efforts. — MT/ZN

European Parliament delays decision on EU-US trade deal

THE European Parliament has delayed until next week a decision on whether to restart work on the EU-US trade deal, after pausing its approval process last week, in protest over US President Donald Trump's push to acquire Greenland and his tariff threats against European allies, according to a senior lawmaker on Monday.

Confirming that no decision was taken on Monday to resume ordinary EU-US legislative procedures, Bernd Lange, chair of the European Parliament's Committee on International Trade, said in a post on X that the Parliament's negotiating team will meet on 4 February to reassess the situation.

On 21 January, the European Parliament decided to put on hold approval of the trade deal between the EU and the United States following US threats of tariffs linked to Greenland.

Tensions eased afterward when Washington announced that a "framework deal" had been reached on Greenland-related issues and that threatened tariffs on eight European countries would be suspended.

Under the EU-US trade deal reached in July last year, the EU would eliminate tariffs on all US industrial products and introduce tariff-rate quotas for a wide range of US agri-food products entering the EU market. In return, Washington would set a 15-per-cent tariff ceiling on most EU goods exported to the United States. — Xinhua

Annual output value of China's bamboo industry tops 520 bln yuan

CHINA'S bamboo industry has achieved an annual output value of over 520 billion yuan (about US$74.4 billion), with more than 15,000 types of bamboo products available, National Forestry and Grassland Administration data showed on Tuesday.

Under the three-year action plan to accelerate replacing plastic with bamboo, the government has implemented supportive policies to foster industrial clustering, according to the administration.

Currently, China has more than 10,000 bamboo processing enterprises, supporting employment for over 29 million people along the entire industrial chain.

China contains nearly eight million hectares of bamboo forests, producing 150 million tonnes of bamboo annually.

During the 15th Five-Year Plan period (2026-2030), the country aims to further improve its policy support to boost the circular economy and deepen integration of technological and industrial innovation to build competitive bamboo industrial clusters, the administration noted. — Xinhua

Modi says India's energy sector offers US$500-bln investment opportunities

INDIAN Prime Minister Narendra Modi said Tuesday that the country's energy sector offers US$500 billion investment opportunities.

Modi made the remarks while addressing via video conferencing the India Energy Week 2026 that commenced in the western state of Goa.

He urged global investors to invest in India.

"India's energy sector lies at the centre of the nation's aspirations, offering investment opportunities worth US$500 billion. So my message is - make in India, innovate in India, scale with India and invest in India."

Modi said the country's oil refining capacity will be expanded from 260 million tonnes per annum (MTPA) to 300 MTPA, and the nation is targeting $100 billion in investment in the oil and gas sector by 2030.

Highlighting that Liquefied Natural Gas (LNG) demand in India was continuously growing, he said the country has set a target to meet 15 per cent of its total energy demand through LNG.

"India is working to build the vessels required for LNG transport domestically, supported by a recently launched ship-building programme," he said. "Numerous investment opportunities have been created in constructing LNG terminals at Indian ports, as well as in regasification projects." — Xinhua

Malaysia hits record 42.2 mln visitors in 2025

MALAYSIA'S tourism sector recorded 42.2 million visitors in 2025, an 11.2 per cent year-on-year increase and 20.4 per cent higher than 2019 benchmarks, the country's state agency Bernama cited Deputy Prime Minister Ahmad Zahid Hamidi as saying.

According to the report, Ahmad Zahid hailed the performance as a "solid foundation" for the upcoming Visit Malaysia 2026 (VM2026) campaign.

Speaking after the Tourism and Culture Cabinet Committee meeting, he emphasized that the industry has solidified its position as a primary engine for the country's economic growth and job creation.

To ensure the momentum translates into long-term fiscal strength, he said the government is adopting a "whole-of-government" approach. This involves total mobilization of the state machinery to streamline coordination across all ministries, departments, and agencies. — Xinhua

China's Greater Bay Area GDP expected to top 15 trl yuan in 2025

CHINA'S Guangdong-Hong Kong-Macao Greater Bay Area (GBA) is pushing forward with integration, with its combined economic output expected to surpass 15 trillion yuan (about US$2.15 trillion) in 2025, according to the annual session of the Guangdong Provincial People's Congress.

The GBA brings the Hong Kong and Macao special administrative regions together with nine mainland cities in the economic powerhouse of Guangdong, including Guangzhou, Shenzhen and Zhuhai. The region is increasingly connected by faster transport and smoother cross-border flows.

Physical connectivity has accelerated in recent years. Intercity railways have shifted from isolated lines to a networked system, pushing total rail mileage beyond 4,000 kilometres, while cross-border water passenger routes have expanded to 17 lines.

Institutional connectivity is also taking shape, with 198 government services now available across borders within the GBA. Authorities have introduced 267 GBA standards and issued 308 GBA certifications.

The region now hosts 84 innovation and entrepreneurship bases for young people from Hong Kong and Macao, having attracted more than 7,000 projects.

This momentum reflects Guangdong's broader economic heft. According to the provincial government work report, which was released at the annual session, the southern province ranked first nationwide in total GDP for the 37th consecutive year in 2025. — Xinhua

Health threat of global plastics projected to soar

THE threat posed by plastic production, usage and disposal to human health will skyrocket in the coming years unless the world does something to address this global crisis, researchers warned Tuesday.

A British-French team of researchers attempted to cover all the different ways that plastic affects health, from oil and gas extraction during production to all the products that end up in landfills. However they said that their modelling study still does not take into account an array of other ways plastic could harm health, such as microplastics or chemicals that can leach out of food packaging.

"This is undoubtedly a vast underestimate of the total human health impacts," lead study author Megan Deeney of the London School of Hygiene & Tropical Medicine told AFP.

The study, published in The Lancet Planetary Health, said it was the first to estimate the number of healthy years of life lost due to the lifecycle of plastic worldwide. The researchers used a measure called DALYs, which represents the number of years lost to either early death or diminished quality of life from illness.

Under a business-as-usual scenario, the number of DALYs caused by plastic was projected to more than double from 2.1 million in 2016 to 4.5 million in 2040. — AFP

Israel releases 9 Palestinian detainees following recovery of last Israeli hostage's remains ISRAEL on Monday released nine Palestinian detainees from the Gaza Strip, who arrived at Al-Aqsa Hospital in Deir al-Balah, central Gaza Strip, hours after the Israeli army announced the recovery of the remains of the last Israeli hostage held in Gaza.

The move is part of the implementation of the ceasefire agreement reached between Israel and Hamas in October 2025.

In a press statement, the hospital said the detainees arrived through the facilitation of the International Committee of the Red Cross after their release by Israeli authorities via the Kerem Shalom crossing.

Earlier on Monday, the Israeli army announced the recovery of the remains of Ran Gvili, 24, a member of Israel Police's elite Yasam patrol unit, who was killed on 7 October 2023, and whose body was transferred to Gaza.

In a press statement, Hamas said it had made "significant efforts" to locate Gvili's remains, calling on Israel to fully implement all provisions of the agreement, including reopening the Rafah crossing, allowing humanitarian aid into Gaza, and withdrawing completely from the Strip. — Xinhua

Iran says to give "comprehensive, regret-inducing" response to any aggression

IRANIAN Foreign Ministry spokesman Esmail Baghaei said on Monday Iran will give a "comprehensive and regret-inducing" response to any aggression.

He made the remarks at a weekly press conference in Tehran, responding to US military movements in West Asia and its ongoing joint drills with Gulf states.

"We have been and still are faced with hybrid warfare. In the aftermath of Israel's military aggression against Iran in June, we have been faced with new claims and threats from the United States and Israel every day over the past," Baghaei said.

He said that countries in West Asia know that Iran would not be the sole target of regional insecurity. "Insecurity is contagious," he said, adding that "any country that respects peace and international law should adopt a clear stance towards US threats against other states."

Drawing on its previous experiences during the 12-day war with Israel and the United States, Iran would "definitely give a comprehensive and regret-inducing response to any aggression," Baghaei added.

Commenting on US President Donald Trump's remarks on Thursday that a US "armada" is heading towards the West Asia with a focus on Iran, Baghaei said the entry of an aircraft carrier to the region "is not supposed to affect Iran's determination and seriousness to defend the country."

He added the Iranian armed forces were closely monitoring any developments and constantly improving their capabilities to protect the country's national sovereignty, dignity and security.

Asked about potential Iran-US talks to prevent conflict, Baghaei said negotiations are only possible with a side that does not seek war or confrontation.

"We have never welcomed war and never shied away from diplomacy and negotiation. We have shown it in practice," he said. — Xinhua

Sri Lanka keeps watch as Nipah virus cases emerge in eastern India

Sri Lanka has stepped up monitoring measures following reports of a Nipah virus cluster in India's eastern state of West Bengal, as health authorities across parts of Asia heighten vigilance over the emerging situation, the Daily Mirror reported.

Health officials said Sri Lanka is tracking developments at the regional level and remains in contact with international health monitoring systems. While no cases have been reported locally, authorities have indicated that preparedness measures are in place should the situation evolve. The alert follows confirmation by Indian authorities of at least five Nipah virus infections in West Bengal, including cases among healthcare workers. The development has prompted several countries in the region to strengthen preventive measures, particularly at international airports. — Xinhua

Alcaraz sweeps into maiden Melbourne semi as Gauff gone in 59 minutes

CARLOS Alcaraz warned he was improving all the time as he swept into his maiden Australian Open semi-final Tuesday and a clash with Alexander Zverev, while Ukraine's Elina Svitolina faces Aryna Sabalenka in the last four.

Spanish world number one Alcaraz silenced a partisan Melbourne crowd in brushing aside home hope Alex de Minaur 7-5, 6-2, 6-1 at Rod Laver Arena.

The 22-year-old Alcaraz is yet to drop a set as he arrows in on a first Australian Open crown.

"I'm just really happy how I'm playing every match, each round my level is increasing," he said, in a warning to his rivals.

"Today I felt really comfortable, playing great tennis that I am really proud of," added Alcaraz, who had never previously gone beyond the quarter-finals in Australia in four previous visits.

The Australian Open is the only Grand Slam that Alcaraz has not won.

Should he beat Zverev and then win Sunday's final, he would in 12 months after last year's runner-up blasted past young American Learner Tien.

Zverev sent down 24 aces in a 6-3, 6-7 (5/7), 6-1, 7-6 (7/3) victory.

World number three Zverev is desperate to finally win a Grand Slam at age 28, having lost three major finals including being well beaten in last year's title decider by Jannik Sinner.

The German's 2025 season fell away after that, winning just one title in an injury-hit campaign and he also struggled with his mental health, taking a one-month break after losing in the first round at Wimbledon.

"The last 10 days I felt healthy, which is very nice, and pain-free, which I haven't felt in a long time. Probably in 12 months," he said after dismanting Tien.

Gauff's epic racquet smash

Coco Gauff folded in 59 error-strewn minutes as Svitolina set up a semifinal against Sabalenka.

Belarusian world number one Sabalenka tamed 18-year-old American Iva Jovic 6-3, 6-0 in 38 degrees Celsius temperatures on Rod Laver Arena.

In the evening, with the roof on because of the suffocating heat, 12th seed Svitolina stunned third seed Gauff 6-1, 6-2.

Television images showed Gauff repeatedly smashing her racquet in the bowels of the stadium afterwards.

INDIA and the European Union announced Tuesday the “mother of all deals”, a huge trade pact to create a market of two billion people, reached after two decades of negotiations.

EU chiefs and Prime Minister Narendra Modi hope the pact will help shield against challenges from the world’s two leading economies, the United States and China.

The agreement will cut or eliminate tariffs on almost 97 per cent of European exports, saving up to four billion euros ($4.75 billion) annually in duties, the 27-nation bloc said.

“A mother of all deals,” Modi said Tuesday in the capital New Delhi, where he met with European Commission President Ursula von der Leyen and European Council President Antonio Costa.

“This deal will bring many opportunities for India’s 1.4 billion and many millions of people of the EU,” Modi said, adding the agreement “represents about 25 per cent of global GDP, and one-third of global trade”.

The EU has eyed India — the world’s most populous nation — as an important market for the future.

“Europe and India are making history today,” von der Leyen said in a statement, a day after she and Costa were feted as guests of honour at India’s Republic Day parade.

UN push to get hundreds of thousands of Gaza children back to school

THE United Nations announced Tuesday a major push to get hundreds of thousands of children across the war-scarred

Gaza Strip back to school. Since the start of the war sparked by Hamas’s October 2023 attack on Israel, nearly 90 per cent of schools in Gaza have been damaged or destroyed and more than 700,000 school-aged children have been left unable to access formal education, according to the UN children’s agency UNICEF.

“Almost two and a half years of attacks on Gaza’s schooling have left an entire generation at risk,” agency spokesman James Elder told reporters in Geneva.

UNICEF was now dramatically scaling up its education initiative in the Palestinian territory, Elder said, in what he described as “one of the largest emergency learning efforts anywhere in the world”. The organization currently supports more than 135,400 children receiving education at over 110 learning spaces in Gaza — many of them in tents, he said. — AFP

UN chief calls for restoration of intl rule of law

UN Secretary-General Antonio Guterres on Monday called on member states to recommit themselves to the full respect of international law.

“The rule of law is a cornerstone of global peace and security. The key to friendly relations among the countries and regions of the world. And the beating heart of the United Nations Charter,” he told a Security Council open debate on international rule of law. “For 80 years it has helped humanity avoid a third world war and eased the human toll in countless smaller conflicts.”

The UN Charter and other instruments of international law have contributed to a collective security system that is robust and resilient. The system prohibits the threat or use of force, and binds all states, large and small, to the same rules, and respects the principles of sovereignty, political independence and territorial integrity of states, Guterres said.

“For smaller and less-powerful countries, and those suffering from historical inequities and the damaging legacies of colonial rule, international law is a lifeline promising equal treatment, sovereignty, dignity and justice. And for powerful countries, it is a guardrail defining what is acceptable, and what is not, in times of disagreement, division and outright conflict,” Guterres said.

The founders of the UN understood that global problems can only be solved by wielding not the weapons of war, but the tools of diplomacy, supported by a system based on international law; by dialogue, not the zero-sum rhetoric of division, and by collaboration, not geopolitical competition, he said. — Xinhua
