Residents Urged to Prioritize Public Safety Amid Armed Terrorist Threats

ARMED terrorists have been launching attacks by using residential homes and administrative buildings in towns and villages as cover, where they have forcibly settled. They aim to shield themselves from Tatmadaw counterattacks while also persuading temporarily displaced persons to return to their native areas and recruiting new members. That enables terrorists to use civilians as human shields. Tatmadaw is committed to safeguarding the sovereignty of the State and will respond to these threats based on intelligence and prevailing conditions. Therefore, residents in areas where terrorists have taken control must prioritize their safety and protect themselves from being exploited by these groups.

Regarding the government's ongoing provision of assistance and care to Bengalis residing in Rakhine State, the following statement was made by U Kyaw Tin Hlaing, a 100-household elder from Aungmingala Ward in Sittway.

U Kyaw Tin Hlaing (100-household elder)
Aungmingala Ward, Sittway.

MY name is U Kyaw Tin Hlaing. My Muslim name is Musa Ahmed. I am a 100-household elder from Aungmingala Ward. There are five wards namely Gontan, Kathit, Kyaunggyilan, Aungmingala, and Maulid connected with ethnic communities. There are 720 households with a population of around 4,000 people in these five wards. I have been serving as a 100-household elder since 2010. During the conflict period in June 2012, Tatmadaw and police members protected our ward. Nothing happened to our ward due to the protection provided in a timely manner.

As there were concerns about arson, the state government, in cooperation with the combined team comprising Tatmadaw and police protected our ward. At that time, tensions between groups were high, and there were fears for people's safety, so security was provided. Up to now, nothing has happened to our ward.

The government provides us with rice every month. NGOs also assist frequently. In the past, there were the Myoma market and shops in our ward. There were traders, painters, masons, carpenters, and casual labourers of all kinds. After the conflict, due to a lack of harmony between communities, people stayed within the village and survived on aid.

Around 2019, after relations gradually became more harmonious, the checkpoints that had been set up were removed.

Police units were also completely withdrawn in 2020. Now, we can go to the main market outside and buy goods. Some fish vendors are also able to go to the main market to sell fish. There are no problems.

In our ward, there are also shops and clinics jointly operated with ethnic communities. At the clinic opened by the government, people of all religions come for medical treatment. There are no problems between people. At present, there is freedom.

Regarding healthcare, during the conflict period, if we needed to go to a hospital, we had to inform the authorities and go under security arrangements through the ward. Now, there is no need to do that. We can go to clinics on our own. There is also a Thaddha Clinic operating in the ward. We can get healthcare services there. The government provides medical services in the ward twice a week on a regular basis.

There used to be only one primary school in our ward for children. Now, it has been upgraded to a middle school. The chief minister pledged that a school building will be built to be a high school from the middle school in the future. We have not yet been able to provide land, but once land is provided, the government will construct the school. For examinations, students currently go to Thetkaepyin to sit for their exams. Now, if there are tenders in our area, Muslims are also able to apply for tenders through the government. We apply jointly with ethnic communities. Whoever qualifies wins the tender. Businesspeople and traders also order goods from Yangon and sell them here. Some people work as painters, masons, and carpenters at the homes of ethnic people. Harmony has been achieved. At present, there are absolutely no problems. We are also able to go to the hospital for medical treatment. As Muslims, we are required to pray at the mosque five times a day, and we can do all five prayers regularly. — News Team/ KTZH

General Aung San Declares Firm Stand Against Election Disruption

“Our Government shall not permit any disruption of the forthcoming election. The electoral process shall remain free and fair, and no interference shall be exercised upon those who participate in it. 24 ex-PDF members lay down arms, rejoin legal framework in Sagaing

THE Government has been inviting individuals who are involved in armed opposition groups operating under various names, including the PDF, to return to the legal fold, and is providing necessary assistance to those who do so.

A total of 24 individuals – 22 men and two women – who had been members of groups operating under the name of the PDF and who have come to understand the peace processes of the State and Tatmadaw, entered the legal framework today together with weapons and ammunition.

These individuals decided to return to the legal fold because they could no longer accept being coerced and forcibly recruited; being compelled to threaten, arrest and kill innocent civilians and government employees for the interests of terrorist groups; and carrying out acts of terrorism such as planting mines and destroying non-military targets, including basic infrastructure, roads and bridges. In addition, they experienced internal discrimination and oppression within these groups, including abuse, killings and other violent acts among members of different ranks, as well as hardship and severe living conditions. They also became demoralized as they were no longer able to withstand Tatmadaw’s military operations.

Furthermore, having come to trust and accept the peace processes of the State and Tatmadaw, they chose to abandon the armed path and return to the legal fold to live peacefully under the law and to contribute once again to the State and the people, who have suffered losses as a result of their actions.

Those who returned to the legal fold comprised 22 men and two women from Monywa Township, Sagaing Township, Kalay Township and Khamti Township. Responsible officials welcomed them and held a ceremony to formally hand them back to their parents or guardians yesterday afternoon at the Zeyathiri Hall of the North-West Command Headquarters. The ceremony was attended by Sagaing Region Chief Minister U Myat Kyaw, Commander Brig-Gen Kyaw Thura, departmental officials, the returnees and their parents or guardians.

At the outset, the chief minister delivered opening remarks, after which the commander gave a briefing on regional stability and tranquillity, as well as on relevant legal provisions. Subsequently, those who had returned to the legal fold handed over the weapons and ammunition they had brought with them, namely two Type-81 rifles with four magazines and 17 rounds of ammunition, and one M-4 rifle with one magazine and ten rounds of ammunition, which the commander received.

Thereafter, the chief minister and the commander provided each returnee with K2 million in cash, amounting to a total of K48 million, along with food supplies. They signed pledges, and then they were formally handed back to their parents or guardians.

The chief minister, the commander and the responsible officials then warmly greeted those in attendance and hosted them with refreshments.

Those who return to the legal fold are being welcomed, provided with necessary assistance and systematically handed back to their parents or guardians. There are still individuals who wish to return to the legal fold. Those wishing to do so are urged to contact the nearest district or township administrative bodies, military camps or police stations as soon as possible, where they will be warmly received and provided with necessary assistance. Rewards will also be granted for weapons and ammunition surrendered. — MNA/KZL

Through ground operations and cooperation with locals, Tatmadaw columns conducted operations in Hsipaw and Mongyai townships in northern Shan State. Between 9 and 22 January 2026, they were able to uncover and clear 13 drug production sites and two sites suspected of being used for online fraud and gambling. Large quantities of drug-manufacturing equipment and related materials were seized. Moreover, one SSA security outpost and one permanently constructed camp located near the drug production sites were also discovered and seized.

Seized drugs will be examined by the combined teams, including experts, and transferred to relevant departments, and systematically destroyed through incineration or demolition. As there may still be additional suspicious drug-manufacturing sites in the surrounding area, security measures will be continuously carried out. Those involved in drug cases will also be thoroughly identified and effectively prosecuted. — MNA/KTZH

The entire Myanmar people fully support the Myanmar delegation

THE people of Myanmar strongly support the Myanmar delegation currently representing the country at the International Court of Justice in The Hague, the Netherlands. This hearing is extremely important for Myanmar, as it involves a case in which an African country, thousands of miles away, has accused Myanmar of serious violations of international law.

The Government of Myanmar is appearing before the court not only to demonstrate its respect for international law and the role of the judiciary, but also to show that one-sided reports based on unfounded information cannot reflect the truth and cannot protect the honour of Myanmar and its people. During the hearings held from 12 to 29 January, following The Gambia's submissions,

These numerous factual events have long been concealed, overlooked by international media, and neglected by biased investigative missions. As a result, the international community has largely been unaware of these facts. Being able to present strong evidence before the international court now provides an opportunity for Myanmar, which has limited media reach, to officially convey these facts.

Islamic Bengali communities and refugee camps across the border.

As a result, the international community has largely been unaware of these facts. Being able to present strong evidence before the international court now provides an opportunity for Myanmar, which has limited media reach, to officially convey these facts.

The issue of the Bengali population in northern Rakhine State has, since colonial times, been primarily an administrative matter related to population management. Since the era of extremist Mujahid insurgent groups, some have attempted to exploit it politically, seeking to seize territory through various schemes.

Regarding the recent allegations against Myanmar based on unfounded and inaccurate information, the people of Myanmar express their full respect and support for the international court, which is being approached with trust, cooperation, and seriousness to uphold the rule of law in the field of international legal affairs.

1. The Deadliest Threat We Do Not See

Non-communicable diseases (NCDs) are often described as silent killers because they develop slowly, progress quietly, and frequently remain undetected until serious complications arise. Unlike infectious diseases, they do not spread from person to person, yet they claim more lives every year than any other group of illnesses. Cardiovascular diseases, cancers, chronic respiratory diseases, and diabetes together account for the majority of global deaths today.

Globally and in Myanmar, NCDs have overtaken communicable diseases as the leading cause of mortality. They affect people across all age groups, including those in their most productive years, undermining national development and placing heavy social and economic burdens on families and health systems. Addressing NCDs is therefore not only a health priority but also a development imperative.

2. Understanding Non-Communicable Diseases

Non-communicable diseases are chronic conditions that tend to be of long duration and often require lifelong management rather than short-term treatment. The four major groups of NCDs are cardiovascular diseases, such as heart attacks and stroke, cancers, chronic respiratory diseases, including chronic obstructive pulmonary disease and asthma, and diabetes.

These diseases share common risk factors. Unhealthy diets, physical inactivity, tobacco use, harmful use of alcohol, and exposure to air pollution contribute significantly to their development. Over time, such behaviours lead to metabolic changes including raised blood pressure, high blood glucose levels, abnormal blood lipids, and overweight or obesity, all of which greatly increase the risk of premature death.

3. The Global Burden of Silent Killers

Non-communicable diseases account for nearly three-quarters of all deaths worldwide. A particularly alarming feature of this burden is the high proportion of premature deaths occurring before the age of 70. Millions of people die each year during their most productive years, resulting in major economic losses and social consequences.

Silent Killers: Non-Communicable Diseases in Global and Myanmar Context

Dr Aung Tun

Low- and middle-income countries carry the greatest share of the global NCD burden. Although NCDs were once considered diseases of affluent societies, nearly three-quarters of NCD-related deaths now occur in developing regions. Rapid urbanization, ageing populations, changing lifestyles, and limited access to preventive and curative health services have accelerated the NCD epidemic in these countries.

4. Myanmar's Growing NCD Challenge

Myanmar is experiencing the same epidemiological transition seen globally. Non-communicable diseases now account for approximately 70 per cent of all deaths in the country. Cardiovascular diseases, particularly heart disease and stroke, are the leading causes of NCD mortality, followed by cancers, diabetes, and chronic respiratory diseases. National risk factor data from the WHO STEPwise Approach to NCD Risk Factor Surveillance (STEPS) highlight the scale of the problem. The Myanmar STEPS Survey (2014), conducted among adults aged 25-64 years, reported that around one in four adults had raised blood pressure, while diabetes affected more than one in ten adults. Tobacco use remains widespread, particularly among men, with both smoked and smokeless tobacco contributing to increased risks of heart disease, stroke, cancer, and chronic lung disease. Harmful use of alcohol and rising levels of overweight and obesity, especially in urban areas, further compound the NCD burden. Importantly, NCDs in Myanmar are not confined to older age groups. A significant proportion of deaths occur before the age of 70, resulting in premature loss of life, reduced workforce productivity, and increased household poverty due to long-term health care costs.

5. Risk Factors: Behavioural, Metabolic and Environmental

The major risk factors for NCDs can be grouped into behavioural, metabolic, and environmental categories. Behavioural risk factors include tobacco use, unhealthy diets high in salt, sugar and unhealthy fats, harmful use of alcohol, and insufficient physical activity. These behaviours are strongly influenced by social norms, commercial practices, and the physical environment. Behavioural risks often lead to metabolic changes such as raised blood pressure, high blood glucose, abnormal cholesterol levels, and overweight or obesity. Among these, elevated blood pressure is one of the leading contributors to NCD-related deaths globally and in Myanmar. Environmental factors also play a major role. Indoor and outdoor air pollution contribute significantly to cardiovascular diseases, stroke, chronic respiratory diseases, and lung cancer. In Myanmar, exposure to household air pollution from solid fuel use, as well as in-

6. Socioeconomic Impact and Development Consequences

Non-communicable diseases pose a serious threat to national development and the achievement of the Sustainable Development Goals. Chronic illness reduces productivity, increases absenteeism, and places long-term financial strain on households. Many families affected by NCDs face catastrophic health expenditures that can push them into poverty. Vulnerable and socially disadvantaged populations are disproportionately affected. Limited access to health services, lack of early detection, and delayed treatment contribute to higher rates of complications and premature death. Without strong health systems and social protection mechanisms, the growing NCD burden risks reversing hard-won development gains.

7. Prevention and Control: From Policy to Personal

Individual-Level Prevention: What Each Person Can Do While government policies and health systems are critical, individual actions remain central to preventing NCDs. Every person can take practical steps to protect their health:

- Avoid all forms of tobacco use and protect family members from second-hand smoke.
- Choose a healthy diet rich in fruits, vegetables, whole grains, and legumes, while reducing salt, sugar, and unhealthy fats.
- Engage in regular physical activity, such as walking or cycling, for at least 150 minutes per week.
- Limit or avoid alcohol consumption.
- Maintain a healthy body weight.
- Check blood pressure, blood sugar, and cholesterol levels regularly, particularly after the age of 40.
- Seek early medical advice and adhere to treatment if diagnosed with hypertension, diabetes, or other chronic conditions.

9. Myanmar's Response to the NCD Challenge

Myanmar has taken important institutional and policy steps to address the growing burden of non-communicable diseases. Within the Ministry of Health, a dedicated Non-Communicable Disease (NCD) Unit was established under the Department of Public Health (DOPH) around 2015 to provide leadership in NCD prevention and control. The NCD Unit is responsible for developing and implementing national strategies, policies, and action plans aimed at reducing morbidity and mortality from major NCDs. A cornerstone of Myanmar's response is the adoption and expansion of the World Health Organization's Package of Essential Noncommunicable Disease Interventions (PEN). Through PEN, cost-effective interventions for the prevention, early detection, treatment, and referral of cardiovascular diseases, diabetes, chronic respiratory diseases, and related risk factors are delivered at the primary health care level. This approach strengthens early diagnosis, improves continuity of care, and promotes equitable access to essential NCD services across the country. Myanmar's NCD response also emphasizes surveillance and evidence-based planning. National risk factor data generated through WHO STEPS surveys provide a foundation for monitoring trends in tobacco use, harmful use of alcohol, unhealthy diets, physical inactivity, hypertension, and diabetes. These data guide policy formulation, resource allocation, and programme prioritization. Multi-sectoral collaboration is another key element of Myanmar's response. The Ministry of Health works with other government sectors, development partners, civil society organizations, and coordinating mechanisms such as the Myanmar Health Sector Coordinating Committee to address the social, commercial, and environmental determinants of NCDs. Together, these efforts aim to reduce preventable risk factors, improve service delivery, and strengthen health system capacity nationwide.

10. From Silent Killers to Visible Action

Non-communicable diseases may progress silently, but their consequences are profound and far-reaching. In Myanmar, as in the rest of the world, NCDs are now the leading cause of death and a major challenge to health systems, economic productivity, and sustainable development. Myanmar's response — anchored in strong institutional leadership, primary health-care-based interventions such as WHO PEN, improved surveillance through STEPS surveys, and multi-sectoral collaboration — demonstrates a clear commitment to tackling this growing epidemic. However, sustained political commitment, adequate investment, and active community participation remain essential to translate policies into measurable health gains. By combining effective national programmes with individual responsibility for healthier lifestyles, Myanmar can move from reacting to silent killers toward preventing them. Making NCDs visible, preventable, and manageable is essential for protecting lives today and securing a healthier future for generations to come.

From May 2021, the arrival of the ships at terminals in Yangon has increased again. Three new container vessels by Maersk Line Myanmar (SeaLand Maersk) started to run to fulfil the seaborne trade requirements in 2021. Earlier, the larger ships had draft problems, preventing sailing on the Yangon River. With the draft being extended up to 10 meters, the larger ocean liners can enter the Thilawa Port. — NN/KK

285 consumer complaints received in 2025

ACCORDING to the Department of Consumer Affairs, a total of 285 consumer complaints regarding losses and grievances were received throughout 2025, including 48 complaints related to goods and 237 complaints related to services, and 244 of them have been settled.

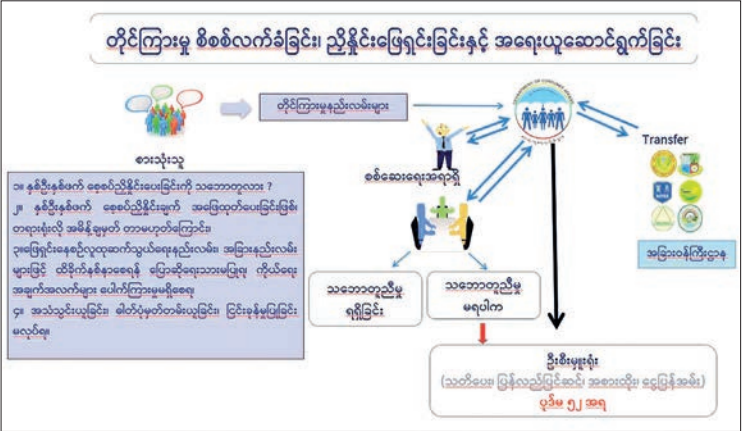

Yangon Region has the highest number of complaints with 163 cases, followed by Mandalay Region, Bago Region and Nay Pyi Taw.

U Kyaw Kyaw Lwin, deputy director general of the DOCA, stated last December that the most common complaints from the Yangon Region in order involved Wi-Fi/internet services, failure to provide advertised services after a purchase and missing facilities promised during apartment purchases.

As a member of the ASEAN Committee on Consumer Protection, the department also handles international cases. If citizens travel to ASEAN countries for medical treatment or shopping and face issues upon their return, the department coordinates with the consumer protection agencies of the respective countries to resolve the matters.

The Consumer Affairs Department is currently collaborating with relevant associations to conduct awareness programmes, meeting with entrepreneurs to discuss and educate them on codes of conduct and settling the issues to ensure consumers' rights are protected. — MT/ZN

MCEF conducts carpenter training for conservation of Inlay stilt houses

THE Technology Development Committee of the Myanmar Construction Entrepreneurs Federation will conduct a carpenter training course in southern Shan State's Nyaungshwe Township to conserve the traditional stilt houses of the Inlay region.

Organized by the committee, the ceremony of the course curriculum introduction was held in Nyaungshwe on 19 January, said MCEF. The training of trainers (TOT) course, scheduled from 20 to 30 January, will accept 20 trainees, and after it, on-the-job training will continue for 100 trainees as the cascade model.

MCEF joint general secretary, the Technology Development Committee secretary and programme manager U Aye Lin gave a presentation about the training, and U Than Htike Aung from Swiss Contact and U Bhone Kyaw and U Myo Nyunt from Mya Nan Dar Consultant Team introduced the course curriculum.

The committee also organized a mason training of trainers in Mandalay, which started on 7 January and concluded on 17 January after completing teaching techniques, methods, assignments, construction safety, site survey, knowledge sharing, practical assessment, exam and feedback collection, said MCEF.

MRCS boosts earthquake safety measures, holds preparedness drills

SAR team conducts preparatory drill in action.

THE Myanmar Red Cross Society (MRCS) has released a set of safety guidelines to mitigate the impact of earthquakes, noting that because these disasters occur suddenly without warning, they often result in significant loss and damage. To prepare before an earthquake, the public is advised to avoid storing heavy items in high places or sleeping near glass windows and doors. Householders should repair any decaying structures within the home, familiarize themselves with the location of the main electrical switch, and keep torches, candles, and first-aid kits ready. Furthermore, the MRCS recommends that schools implement earthquake drills and disaster education programmes.

During the earthquake itself, it is essential to remain calm. If inside a building, one should stay indoors rather than rushing out, seeking shelter under a sturdy table away from glass. Those already outdoors should remain there, moving clear of power lines, pylons, trees, and brick walls that could collapse. The advisory also warns against striking matches near gas tanks, using lifts, or driving onto bridges and flyovers; motorists should instead pull over in a safe area. Those near the coast must immediately flee to higher ground to avoid potential tsunami waves, while occupants of high-rise buildings are urged not to cause a stampede when attempting to exit.

Once the shaking has subsided, individuals should inspect electrical wiring, water pipes, and fuel tanks, cutting off supplies if damage is detected. Caution is advised regarding live wires, and the electricity department should be notified to isolate power where necessary. The MRCS further advises staying away from the sea and damaged buildings, using telephones only for emergencies, and following local community emergency plans. Should evacuation be required, essential emergency supplies must be taken along. — ASH/MKKS

ACC launches public feedback programme to reduce corruption

The Anti-Corruption Commission office conducts an edutainment programme to promote integrity among students and youth.

THE Anti-Corruption Commission has announced the launch of the Public Feedback Programme (PFP) to help reduce corruption by collecting feedback from the public.

Under the programme, the Commission is working in cooperation with relevant departments to gather public feedback through an SMS-based system. According to the PFP, citizens who receive services from government offices and departments will be sent questions related to those services via SMS using the short code “1111”, enabling the authorities to collect public responses.

The programme aims to improve the quality of services provided by government departments and organizations while reducing corruption. Through public responses submitted via SMS to the short code “1111”, the authorities will be able to identify service-related needs and weaknesses within government offices and organizations and make the necessary improvements.

In addition, coordination has been made with telecommunications operators to allow the public to respond to SMS messages at affordable rates, thereby encouraging broader public participation in anti-corruption efforts, the Commission said. — ASH/KZL

Japan's exports to US fall as tariffs bite

Higher purchases of liquefied petroleum gas (LPG), cereals, and power-generating machinery raised Japan's import bill.

JAPAN'S exports to the United States dropped 11.1 per cent in December and slipped more than four per cent last year, official figures showed Thursday, as tariffs bite.

In 2025, Japan's exports to the United States fell 4.1 per cent, contributing to a 12.6 per cent decline in Tokyo's trade surplus with Washington to 7.5 trillion yen ($47 billion), finance ministry data showed.

A drop in the number of cars and auto parts exported, as well as rise in imports of liquefied petroleum gas, cereals and power-generating machines, were primary factors in Tokyo's shrinking trade surplus with Washington, according to the data.

In December, Tokyo's exports to Washington fell 11.1 per cent to 1.81 trillion yen ($11.4 billion), with the trade surplus shrinking 31.7 per cent to 690.6 billion yen ($4.4 billion).

In July, Tokyo and Washington announced a trade deal lowering tariffs to 15 per cent from a feared 25 per cent.

Crucially, that reduction included the auto sector, an industry that accounted for 30 per cent of Japanese exports to the United States in 2024.

However, Tokyo officials and business leaders have said the 15 per cent tariffs are still high compared with the period before the second Trump administration. — AFP

India-EU FTA may face hurdles from non-tariff barriers like CBAM: Jefferies

WHILE India and the European Union move closer to finalizing a long-pending Free Trade Agreement (FTA), concerns remain for India on non-tariff barriers, particularly the upcoming Carbon Border Adjustment Mechanism (CBAM), highlighted Jefferies in its latest report on the India-EU trade deal.

The report said that a key concern for India is the presence of multiple non-tariff barriers for its exports to the EU, with limited scope for relaxation. It specifically pointed to CBAM as a major challenge, noting that this mechanism could impact Indian exports going forward. Jefferies stated "Key concern for India is the many non-tariff barriers such as the upcoming CBAM mechanism for its exports. We see limited scope of relaxation here".

The Carbon Border Adjustment Mechanism (CBAM) is the EU's policy to put a fair price on carbon emissions from imported goods, making them cost the same as domestically produced goods, thus preventing "carbon leakage". — ANI

NEWS IN BRIEF

South Korea's economy grew just 1% in 2025

SOUTH Korea logged its slowest growth in half a decade in 2025, the country's central bank said Thursday, while exports rose on the back of a boom in artificial intelligence.

Asia's fourth-largest economy has struggled with sluggish demand, a troubled housing market and the fallout of former president Yoon Suk Yeol's martial law declaration, which plunged the country into political chaos.

Last year's one per cent growth was the slowest since 2020, when the economy shrank following the outbreak of COVID-19.

Exports were a bright spot, rising by 4.1 per cent, the country's central bank said, while imports were up 3.8 per cent. — AFP

UK annual inflation rises more than expected in December

BRITAIN'S annual inflation rate rose more than expected in December, official data showed Wednesday, reinforcing expectations that the Bank of England will hold off on cutting interest rates next month.

The Consumer Prices Index (CPI) rose to 3.4 per cent in December, compared to 3.2 per cent in November, the Office for National Statistics (ONS) said in a statement.

The analysts' consensus forecast had been for inflation of 3.3 per cent. However, price pressures are widely expected to ease in 2026, with inflation set to move closer to the Bank of England's two-per-cent target.

The ONS attributed December's rise to higher tobacco prices, airfares and food costs. — AFP

Ubisoft unveils details of big restructuring bet

UBISOFT on Wednesday ended a months-long wait for details of a restructuring the French games giant hopes will power it up to face a competitive market – at the price of a string of cancelled games and a new round of belt-tightening. A wave of disappointed social media posts from fans mourned the highest-profile axed title, a remake of the beloved 2000s-era classic “Prince of Persia: The Sands of Time”, which was cut after teams sunk several years into its development.

A further five games have been cancelled outright, including four unannounced titles and one mobile game, while seven more have been delayed.

The cuts and delays make up a large chunk of an expected one-billion-euro ($1.2 billion) operating loss in Ubisoft’s 2025-26 financial year. – AFP

China home to over 6,000 AI firms in 2025

CHINA had more than 6,000 artificial intelligence (AI) enterprises last year, while the scale of the country’s core AI industry was expected to exceed 1.2 trillion yuan (about US$171.39 billion) in 2025, the Ministry of Industry and Information Technology said on Wednesday.

In 2025, domestic companies released multiple AI chip products, and the country’s intelligent computing power capacity reached 1,590 EFLOPS last year, Zhang Yunming, vice minister of industry and information technology, said at a press conference. – Xinhua

Maharashtra’s first Innovation city to be built near Mumbai

MAHARASHTRA is set to build its first ‘Innovation City’ near Mumbai, bringing in multiple investors and global innovation ecosystems to India, said Maharashtra Chief Minister Devendra Fadnavis.

Speaking to ANI on the sidelines of the World Economic Forum in Davos, Switzerland, Fadnavis highlighted on Wednesday that the idea was proposed under the AI and the Innovation Ecosystem theme of the 2025 WEF conference before more than 400 investors, and this year the location has been finalized with the project set to begin in six to eight months.

“The city will bring global innovation ecosystems to Mumbai, India. Our goal is to make Mumbai a hub where anyone in the world can easily access a plug-and-play innovation system. Tata Sons has committed $11 billion to develop the Innovation City, including a data centre.

Following this announcement, international investors are now expressing serious interest in investing in this city. We are set to build India’s first innovation city near Mumbai,” CM Fadnavis told ANI. — ANI

US, Denmark to renegotiate 1951 Greenland defence pact: source

While European allies plan to strengthen Arctic security, the idea of placing US bases in Greenland under American sovereignty was not discussed.

THE United States and Denmark will renegotiate a 1951 defence pact on Greenland, a source familiar with talks between President Donald Trump and NATO chief Mark Rutte told AFP Thursday.

The source said that European allies would also step up Arctic security, but insisted that placing American bases on Greenland under US sovereignty had not been discussed.

“The 1951 agreement will get renegotiated,” the source said. The defence agreement, updated in 2004, already gives Washington freedom to ramp up its troop deployments, provided it informs the authorities in Denmark and Greenland in advance. The US currently has one base on Greenland – the Pituffik Space Base on the northwest of the island that constitutes a crucial link in the US missile defence system. Trump on Wednesday announced a framework deal after talks with Rutte at the World Economic Forum in Davos, but the details of the purported agreement remained vague. — AFP

S Korea's former PM Han Duck-soo jailed 23 years

A South Korean court sentenced the country's former prime minister Han Duck-soo to 23 years in prison for abetting then-President Yoon Suk Yeol's brief imposition of martial law in December 2024, state media has reported.

The ruling was delivered on 21 January by the Seoul Central District Court in a nationally televised verdict, Yonhap reported, adding that the presiding judge ordered Han to be placed in custody, citing concerns he could destroy evidence.

Presiding Judge Lee Jin-kwan defined Yoon's imposition of martial law as an act of insurrection that “could have pushed South Korea back into dictatorship” and convicted Han of “playing a key role in an insurrection.” — ANI

Reeling Napoli face Juve after 'unacceptable' Champions League showing

NAPOLI are reeling ahead of Sunday's clash with fierce rivals Juventus after more European disappointment left the Serie A title holders on the brink of being eliminated from the Champions League. Trailing leaders Inter Milan by six points ahead of their trip to Turin, Napoli have to pick themselves up after a poor 1-1 draw at 10-man FC Copenhagen.

Scott McTominay's goal, which came shortly after Thomas Delaney was sent off for Copenhagen towards the end of the first half, looked to have sent Napoli on the way to a key win for their hopes of securing a play-off berth.

Instead Napoli were pegged back and as a result dropped into the elimination places with one match remaining, a horrible result for both Napoli and Italy's dwindling reputation on the continental stage. "We should have won that game, it's unacceptable," McTominay told Sky. "We should have scored the second and third goals to close out the game... It's really disappointing that we didn't". — AFP

South Korean law to regulate AI takes effect

SOUTH Korea became the first country to have a wide-ranging law regulating artificial intelligence take full effect on Thursday, including specific provisions targeting deepfakes.

The country, home to memory chip powerhouses Samsung and SK hynix, has said it aims to join the United States and China as one of the top three AI powers.

“The AI Basic Act comes into full effect today,” President Lee Jae Myung said.

The law requires companies to give users advance notice when services or products use generative AI.

It also says they must clearly label content, including deepfakes, that cannot readily be differentiated from reality, among other requirements.

The act, passed in December 2024, is meant to “establish a safety- and trust-based foundation to support AI innovation”, the Ministry of Science and ICT said in a statement.

Violations are punishable by a fine of up to 30 million won ($20,400). South Korean media said it was the first comprehensive AI regulation law in the world to take effect. — AFP

China welcomes Canada’s new EV trade measures: spokesperson

A Chinese Ministry of Commerce spokesperson on Thursday welcomed Canada’s new trade arrangements for electric vehicles (EVs) exported from China, calling them “a positive step in the right direction”.

Spokesperson He Yongqian made the remarks when answering a question on the agreements on EVs and rapeseed reached between the two countries.

According to the adjusted arrangements, Canada will grant China an annual quota of 49,000 EVs. Vehicles within this quota will enjoy the most-favoured-nation tariff rate of 6.1 per cent and be exempted from the 100 per cent additional tariff, with the quota volume set to increase year by year at a certain ratio.

Regarding rapeseed, He noted that China has always advocated resolving trade differences through dialogue and consultation. The country will fully consider Canada’s reasonable demands within the framework of established rules and make a final ruling based on facts and evidence. — Xinhua
