“The number of visitors seeking relaxation at nearly all beaches in Ayeyawady Region has significantly increased during this Thingyan period compared to previous years. Omadanti Beach near Danubyu, which is relatively lesser-known, has attracted the most day-trippers from Yangon Region. In reality, it is not a beach but a sandbank in the Ayeyawady River. During the Thingyan period, 21,155 domestic travellers visited it. A total of 11,557 domestic and foreign tourists visited the well-known Shwethaungyan Beach near Patheingyi during Thingyan,” said U Soe Win. — ASH/MKKS

Yangon sees decline in property investors, rise in gold buyers

THERE are just a few people who have invested in the property sector, but there are many people who have bought gold for investment purposes in Yangon.

“Rather than buying real estate, many people have bought gold for investment purposes at present. People have enjoyed investing in gold for many years. If you call estate agents and ask about the property sale, they will reply that it’s not good. But the rental market is pretty good, and prices are quite high,” said an economist.

It is still early to predict the property sale, and the market has been entirely based on the actual situation while there is a gap between asking price and buying price, he said.

“People thought more investment would be made in the property sector as gold price and exchange rate have skyrocketed. But in reality, people don’t make much property investments; they prefer gold investments, as I heard from gold traders. In the rental market, separate house, apartment and condominium rents have been more active. People don’t want to buy estates for investment because it takes too long to resell them. But most of the buyers bought estates for rent, not for sale. It is happening not only in South Okkalapa but in all townships of Yangon. So we can say the rental market has been better than selling and buying,” said Myanmar Real Estate Services Association (South Okkalapa township) Chair Daw Hnin Nwe Oo. Overall, in the real estate market, land plot sales have been active slightly.

“Land plot transactions have been seen because there are buyers who want to run hospitals, shopping centres and shops. That is also the case in South Okkalapa and other townships. Houses have been sold, but land plot sales have been more active,” she said.

Counter-argument to false information

False claims by malicious media outlets aim to discredit security forces

SUBVERSIVE media outlets like Khit Thit are circulating false information alleging that security forces stopped around 20 young pedestrians without cause at the junction between Natmauk Township and Myothit Township in Magway Region on 23 April and forcibly conscripted them into military service. Additionally, the outlet claims that security forces entered houses in four villages, arrested youths, and took them away.

However, according to a security officer, these claims are unfounded, and no such incidents occurred in the township. Security forces, in collaboration with residents, conducted patrols and security checks in the villages to prevent terrorists from finding refuge and to maintain peace and stability.

Reports suggest that terrorists and malicious media outlets are deliberately spreading false information to sow panic among the public and to distort the perception of the security forces responsible for safeguarding the region. — MNA/TKO

Local spot gold prices experience slight decline

THE pure gold price has turned marginally downward to K4,700,000 per tical, according to the gold market information.

The gold price on 19 April was K4,820,000 per tical. However, it slightly dipped to K4,710,000 per tical on 23 April.

As the global gold price declined and stood at US$2,300 per ounce on 23 April, Myanmar's domestic spot gold price also decreased by over K100,000 per tical within a few days.

At present, the closing price of the reference rate for pure gold by the Yangon Gold Entrepreneurs Association (YGEA) stands at K3,999,300, though the market price is K4,710,000 per tical. Accordingly, the discrepancy between the market price and YGEA reference price is K700,000 for a tical.

On 10 April, before the Myanmar New Year holiday, the pure gold price in the domestic market broke a record standing at K4,840,000 per tical. Therefore, authorities are carrying out a probe into the manipulations of the gold market, the YGEA disclosed on 30 March.

The YGEA stated in its statement on 30 March that it regularly announces the gold market price three times a day based on the prices opened by seven gold shops in Yangon. However, ill-willed business-people, brokers and some traders manipulate the gold price, spreading misinformation about unreasonable prices in the gold market. The YGEA strongly denounces those misleading, unscrupulous traders, and the YGEA members will collaborate with authorities to maintain the gold market stability. — NN/TMT

Polish a fine history of mass literacy campaign

THE ongoing literacy campaign, taking place nationwide from 6 April to 15 May 2024, is a testament to Myanmar's rich history of promoting education. Led by university and college students, as well as aspiring teachers, this 40-day mass literacy campaign aims to eradicate illiteracy across the country. Myanmar's commitment to literacy has deep roots. Over 60 years ago, local authorities, supported by dedicated volunteer youths, launched the "3-Rs course" — reading, writing, and arithmetic — in Myanmar, and UNESCO recognized it for its significant impact. This legacy of literacy promotion was further honoured when Myanmar received the Mohammad Reza Pahlavi Prize 8 September 1971, and the Noma Prize in 1983, acknowledging its outstanding efforts in mass literacy campaigns.

The journey towards widespread literacy began modestly in 1964 when four trainees from the Kanbe teacher training school initiated a one-month literacy course in East Sanpya Village, Meiktila Township, Mandalay Region.

Through the mass literacy campaign, Myanmar hopes to change the socioeconomic trajectory of its citizens. By emphasizing the value of literacy, individuals can unlock new opportunities for personal and professional growth. With improved literacy, people can make more informed decisions and approach life with greater confidence, thereby creating a brighter future for themselves and their communities.

By building on this success, the 2024 literacy campaign aims to replicate these achievements across all regions and states. By transforming illiterates into literate individuals, the campaign seeks to broaden their opportunities for livelihoods and daily functioning. Those literates will have a great chance to shape their lives brighter and prosper as much as they can.

According to the 2019 interim population data, there were approximately 4.1 million illiterate individuals aged 15 and above nationwide, with a higher proportion of women than men. The 2019 population data also revealed that 8.1 per cent of the 46.463 million people above the age of five had never attended school. Additionally, more than 900,000 individuals out of the 25.169 million people above 25 years old, accounting for 3.8 per cent, had no formal education. This lack of access to learning opportunities has hindered their ability to engage fully in society and earn a livelihood.

FOR ease of reference, let's continue to refer to these hypocrites, who descend from their Ivory Towers in Geneva and New York, dictating and demanding third-world countries as self-absorbed people (SAP).

One of their own, who is a "has been", went to some Karen areas in the Myanmar-Thai border and promptly declared, "The UN has failed the people of Myanmar". Such words of wisdom! So true! Only from such wise people can a conclusion like this be made! Retirement can bring boredom!

The fact is: The UN has also failed the people of Haiti! SAPs have been in Haiti for decades. Haiti is hell on earth under their watch. They will be "barbecued" in Haiti!

The UN has also failed the people of Sudan! SAPs have been in the Sudan for decades.

The UN has also failed the people of South Sudan! Wasn't that their "baby" when it was created?

The UN has also failed the people of Somalia!

The UN has failed the people of Libya!

The UN has also failed the people of Gaza! Where are those SAPS who loosely say "textbook this and textbook that"? Where are they?

Shall we go on? The list is long!

When their "Uncles" are involved, they can't do anything. All they can do is shout from afar, or in many cases, just tuck their tails and stay quiet. They can't enter. They can't demand to enter. They are not given visas. They are care-declared PNG! When it comes to their "Uncles", they take it all on their chin. But when they deal with third-world countries, they are very condescending.

They lecture about bullying as immoral to others, but these SAPs are the biggest bullies to third-world countries: the world's best kiss-up and kick-down people.

These people enjoy the perks that come with employment. They stay in that failed system for 20 to 30 years. They don't complain. But once they leave the system or enter retirement, they start to turn against the same institution that has fed them for so long. These are people with no principles or morale. They form groups, claiming themselves "righteous", and continue to focus on the shortcomings of the third-world countries. In doing so, they keep their names on the radar for future employment. Their "consultancy" thrives. There is no shortage of so-called Think Tanks and Crisis Groups that would enlist their services.

Recently, a certain Envoy was appointed. Only the SAPS would appoint someone from the wrong country. However, a round trip from Sydney to Geneva and New York is about 10,000 miles long. Nice for air miles! While on a customary regional tour, there will be demands to meet with leaders in these countries. In other countries, they would be met, at best, at the Deputy Assistant Secretary level. Whether to be able to visit the Capitals of the countries that really matter for the issues of Myanmar is a whole different matter. The reality is not a chance!

Let's remember that there is Beijing and Moscow. Best of luck! Only those SAPs can be so blind! But why would there be any surprise? They have been so intoxicated by their arrogance for so long.

History gives clear evidence when these SAPs get involved in conflicts, and civil wars never end. What conflict have they solved in recent memory? A record number of people will be forcibly displaced or stateless by the end of 2024. They must be doing a great job that the world is becoming a safer place.

They will come to Myanmar with preconceived demands and conclusions. Before anything, instead of thinking about solving the problems of Myanmar, they will promote their favourite liberal causes with good-sounding themes.

Keep them away from Myanmar. In doing so, Myanmar's problems will be solved sooner. Don't let the people of Myanmar suffer endlessly in the hands of the SAPs like in many other countries.

Why Russia's Approach to Artificial Intelligence May Save Civilization

Vorontsov's insights underscore the profound impact of AI on various domains, raising pertinent concerns regarding security, ethics, and civilization.

THE rapid development of artificial intelligence (AI) has raised security, ethical and civilizational issues. Professor of the Russian Academy of Sciences (RAS) Konstantin Vorontsov has shared his vision on the future of the technology.

Artificial intelligence (AI), in its broadest sense, is the ability of a computer to perform human-like tasks which require analyzing, generalizing, learning from past experience and decision-making.

"The progress of the last decade in computing technology, neural network training algorithms and the accumulation of big data has allowed us to solve increasingly difficult problems: processing and recognition of images, speech signals, natural language texts," said Konstantin Vorontsov, a doctor of physical and mathematical sciences and professor at the Department of Mathematical Methods of Forecast, Faculty of Computational Mathematics and Cybernetics (CMC) at Moscow State University.

"So far, nothing holistic has been created that we could call artificial intelligence. This is just a set of separate technologies and tools for solving various problems of prediction and automation of decision making," the scientist stressed.

Vorontsov acknowledged that the development of AI is advancing by leaps and bounds, pointing to the latest breakthrough in the field of "large language models" (LLMs) — ChatGPT.

In computer science, LLM is described as a deep learning algorithm that can perform a variety of natural language processing (NLP) tasks. NLP is the ability of a computer to "understand" human language, both spoken and written.

"The breakthrough is so revolutionary that in late March, researchers behind the latest version of GPT-4 say that they have seen 'glimpses of general artificial intelligence' for the first time," Vorontsov said. "The model, trained on terabytes of texts, acquired abilities it had never been taught, which were numerous, non-trivial and unexpected."

GPT-4 is said to be able to "generate, edit, and iterate with users on creative and technical writing tasks, such as composing songs, writing screenplays, or learning a user's writing style," according to OpenAI, a US-based artificial intelligence research organization.

The scientist argued that the size of the model and its parameters are still no match for the volume of the human brain. "It doesn't seem to be intelligent yet, although it's already close to it," he remarked. Still, the danger is that the model's ability to generate fully meaningful text misleads the people.

"It seems to us that the chatbot could think; that it is smart and knows a lot, that it has 'character' and 'personality', that it makes decisions. This is all untrue. (...) The chatbot does make decisions except for what word to generate next. It cannot 'think'," he said.

Having to some extent "humanized" the AI-powered software, some people are inclined to shift their responsibility onto it, taking what it generates at face value without double-checking. The crux of the matter is that the machine is not only error prone, but it has already "learnt" to generate false information and fake news from articles promoting distorted information in the media sphere.

"While generating text AI can distort and mix facts in bizarre ways," the scientist said. "When this was first discovered, Google developers became afraid that a [neural] network could be used to generate 'an ocean of lies,' in work is by no means "neutral": it can be "politically biased" and propagate an agenda, depending on what materials it has "learnt" the most from, according to the scientist. Vorontsov cited a study

The inspection team also inspected the dormitories, clinic, library, kitchen, food storage, water purifier, and water sanitation system of the Myeik Prison and Kyaukphyutaung/Natsingon Production Camp and donated books for the prisoners.

Next, the inspection team inspected the Training School for Girls under the MNHRC Law and procedures to determine whether the girls were enjoying fundamental rights, including healthcare services, food supply, adequate dormitories, the status of Citizenship Scrutiny Card, provisions of purified drinking water, a support programme for physical and mental development, as well as rights to education, learn, vocational training, communication with their families, reintegration, and had freedom of religion.

While inspecting the police lock-up and court detention centre under the MNHRC law and procedures, the MNHRC team inspected the conditions during the remand period, including whether any torture occurred during the investigation, the opportunities to meet with family members, the conditions of eating and drinking while appearing in court, the utilization of sewage in the lock-up, and the overall cleanliness of the facilities. Furthermore, the team inspected the acquisition of the right to meet with lawyers or legal representatives.

Confiscations of illegal items: Timbers, fuel oil, industrial materials, consumer goods, boats and vehicles

DURING inspections on 23 April, officials from the Ayeyawady Naval Region Command seized the MV Shwemyitta (iron body), estimated to be worth K1,000 million, carrying 110.313 tonnes of illegal teak and 105.603 tonnes of illegal other timbers valued at K366.896 million in Myanmar waters of the Taninthayi region. On the same day, an Isuzu Giga tractor head with a trailer, valued at approximately K75 million, was confiscated at the Ywathagyi Dry Port. It was travelling from Mandalay to Yangon, carrying goods worth K15.16 million, including 50 pieces of luggage from China that were not declared in the Import Declaration (ID). The action was taken under the Forest Law and Customs procedures.

Similarly, on the same day, combined teams captured 1.021 tonnes of illegal teak and 4.874 tonnes of illegal hardwood valued at K3.933 million in Toungoo and Thayawady districts, and 4.942 tonnes of illegal other timbers worth K425,116 in Mawlamyine, Kyaukto, and Thaton districts. The action was conducted under the Forest Law.

Additionally, on-duty teams seized two vehicles carrying six types of goods valued at K65.95 million, including 200 sets of used Lenovo laptops from China, without official documents, at the Thanlwin Bridge (Tayotehla side) checkpoint, and illegal teak weighing 1.248 tonnes and other illegal timbers weighing 13.621 tonnes valued at K1.577 million in Lewe, Pinyinmana, and Ottarathiri districts. The action was taken under the Forest Law.

THE Louvre museum in Paris announced Tuesday that it planned to organize yoga and sport sessions in its famed galleries as part of a city-wide cultural programme ahead of the Olympics.

The world's biggest museum is to offer visitors the chance to take part in dance, yoga and work-out sessions with instructors and coaches while gazing upon its world-renowned paintings and sculptures.

The announcement was one of several on Tuesday aimed at whipping up Olympic enthusiasm ahead of the start of the Games in Paris on 26 July.

"The Louvre is physically in the centre of Paris. It will be physically at the centre of the Olympic Games," museum chief Laurence des Cars told reporters.

Details of the special sessions and the museum's new Olympics-themed exhibition are available on its website.

The opening ceremony is set to take place on the river Seine which runs past the Louvre. A temporary stadium to host the skateboarding and breakdancing is being built on the nearby Place de la Concorde. The Olympic flame is also set to burn in the neighbouring Tuileries gardens, a security source has told AFP.

Indigenous people march in Brazil to demand land demarcation

THOUSANDS of Indigenous people with colourful feathered headdresses and bows and arrows marched Tuesday in Brazil's capital to demand the demarcation of their lands, an issue that pits a leftist president again a conservative-dominated congress.

One of President Luis Inacio Lula da Silva's campaign pledges before taking power last year was to set boundaries for the traditional lands of Brazil's 1.7 million Indigenous people, resuming a policy that his far-right predecessor Jair Bolsonaro had abandoned.

Scientists say Indigenous people are so good at preserving their land that demarcation helps protect the environment.

Lula so far has set up 10 new officially recognized Indigenous areas, but the demonstrators who were out Tuesday want him to do more. "There is an Indigenous emergency," Jacqueline Arandurah, a leader of the Kaiowa people in the southern state of Mato Grosso do Sul, told AFP. — AFP

French artist JR downsizes at Venice Biennale with Orient Express

Traditionally known for his massive installations on iconic structures worldwide, such as the Louvre and the Pyramids, JR now focuses on refurbishing a vintage carriage of the Venice Simplon-Orient-Express.

BETTER known for his huge photographic collages, French artist JR presents a smaller scale project for the Venice Biennale this year that still aims to "change perspectives" — this time through rail travel.

The 41-year-old, known for installing huge trompe l'oeil photographs on structures from the Louvre to the Pyramids, turned his hand to renovating an old carriage of the Venice Simplon-Orient-Express.

The midnight blue wagon, decked out in Art Deco style, will hit the tracks next year but for now has been installed on a barge in Venice lagoon as part of the 60th Biennale art exhibition.

JR admits it is a bit of a "crazy project" but he has long been fascinated by trains, dating back to his teenage years as a graffiti artist, where he took inspiration — and plied his trade — on the metro and suburban overland trains in Paris.

"It's one of the carriages that has had 1,000 lives," he told AFP. "When we collected it in Belgium, it was still burned and dented, it had been abandoned for a long time."

Peering through eye-shaped portholes, visitors catch a glimpse within of various references to JR's past work.

For JR, train travel is synonymous with freedom.

Japan eyes cashless tax refunds to stem illicit resale by tourists

While cash refunds at airports will still be an option, the government intends to promote cashless refunds to reduce congestion.

JAPAN is considering introducing cashless tax refunds for inbound travellers, as part of efforts to prevent them from illicitly earning money by reselling tax-free items before departure, sources close to the matter said Tuesday.

Under the envisaged system, the government would have foreign travellers pay for products that include the consumption tax, which would be later refunded through a credit card or other cashless format, the sources said.

Cash refunds at airports will remain available, but the government will encourage visitors to receive cashless refunds to avoid congestion at airports, said the sources. It aims to include the details of the system in tax reform plans for fiscal 2025.

In Japan, foreign tourists are exempted from paying consumption tax when purchasing goods totalling 5,000 yen ($32) or more as long as they intend to use the items in their home countries.

To prevent them from consuming or reselling tax-free items while travelling in Japan, the products are packed and sealed in bags or boxes before leaving the country. — Kyodo

Large crowds march against Argentina public university cuts

HUNDREDS of thousands of Argentines took to the streets on Tuesday, protest organizers said, to voice outrage at cuts to higher public education under budget-slashing new President Javier Milei.

Joined by professors, parents and alumni from the economic crisis-riddled South American country's 57 state-run universities, students rose up "in defence of free public university education".

Labour unions, opposition parties and private universities backed the protests in Buenos Aires and other major cities such as Cordoba — in one of the biggest demonstrations yet against the austerity measures introduced since Milei took office in December. — AFP

German forecast to offer signs if ailing economy on the mend

Last year, Germany's economy contracted due to factors like high inflation, manufacturing slowdown, and weakness in trading partners, weighing down the eurozone.

THE German government is expected to raise its latest growth forecasts on Wednesday as Europe's crisis-hit top economy shows tentative signs it is finally turning a corner.

Improvements in key indicators, from industrial output to business activity, in recent months suggest that a hoped-for recovery may be slowly under way.

The German economy shrank slightly last year, hit by soaring inflation, a manufacturing slowdown and weakness in trading partners, and has acted as a major drag on the 20-nation eurozone.

Initial hopes for a strong rebound this year were dialled back as the economy languished, with Berlin in February slashing its growth forecast to just 0.2 per cent. The International Monetary Fund followed suit last week and is now expecting the same figure.

But improving signs have fuelled hopes the lumbering economy — while not about to break into a sprint — may at least be getting back on its feet.

On Wednesday, a closely-watched survey from the Ifo institute showed business sentiment rising for a third consecutive month in April, and more strongly than expected.

ING economist Carsten Brzeski said the survey pointed to "the return of optimism", and "strengthens the view that the German economy has left the trough behind". — AFP

INDONESIA'S central bank hiked interest rates Wednesday to their highest for seven years, an unexpected move to boost the rupiah, which continues to weaken against the dollar despite several interventions in currency markets.

Economists had predicted Bank Indonesia to hold the seven-day reverse repurchase rate at six per cent but it instead raised it 25 basis points to 6.25 per cent, a level not seen since 2016.

Italy fines Amazon over 'recurring' purchase option

ITALY'S competition authority said Wednesday it had fined two Amazon companies 10 million euros ($10.6 million) for unfair commercial practices, for pushing customers into agreeing to "recurring" rather than "one-time" purchases online.

In a statement, the AGCM said the option to set up regular purchases was "pre-selected by default" on a wide selection of products listed on Amazon's Italian website.

"The graphic layout of the pre-selected recurring purchase option may lead consumers to buy products periodically — even when there is no actual need — thereby limiting their ability to choose freely," the AGCM said in a statement. "Moreover, the conduct implemented by the company was deemed contrary to the standards of professional diligence. "As a major operator, Amazon is expected to design its online interfaces, particularly those related to purchasing processes, in a manner that allows consumers to make free and informed commercial decisions." — AFP

DUTCH brewer Heineken said Wednesday its beer sales were up but saw a "challenging and uncertain" economic outlook and couldn't guarantee the same growth for the rest of the year.

Global beer volume sold rose by 4.7 per cent in the first quarter of the year compared to the same period in 2023, said Heineken, the world's second-biggest brewer after AB InBev.

Japan's IHI rigged data for over 4,000 engines at least since 2003

Of these engines, 2,058 did not meet the specifications outlined in contracts with customers.

JAPANESE leading engine maker IHI Corp said Wednesday a subsidiary has falsified fuel efficiency data for 4,361 engines, mostly for ships, produced at least since 2003 for the domestic and overseas markets.

The data-rigging was found at IHI Power Systems Co's plants in Niigata and Gunma prefectures, with data doctored during tests to make their fuel economy look better, IHI said.

Of the 4,361 engines, 2,058 did not meet the specifications set under contracts with its customers, according to IHI.

"It is a betrayal of our customers' trust," IHI Senior Executive Officer Hideo Morita said at a press conference. "We are in a grave situation in which the foundation of our manufacturing has been shaken."

Among the affected engines, some are used in Japan Coast Guard patrol vessels and others in Hokkaido Railway Co trains and in fishing boats owned by some municipalities, IHI said.

The misconduct came to light after a whistleblower within the subsidiary reported the wrongdoing in February. — Kyodo

N Macedonia votes in crucial elections for stalled EU talks

The country faces a significant hurdle in its EU aspirations due to a two-year standoff with neighbouring Bulgaria, primarily over issues related to language, history, and minority recognition.

NORTH Macedonia heads to the polls Wednesday for the first in a series of elections that could decide whether the diverse Balkan country will ever join the European Union.

The first round of its presidential elections comes amid a two-year standoff between the government and the opposition over how to deal with neighbouring Bulgaria blocking its path to EU membership.

Relations between Sofia and Skopje have been strained for years by bitter disputes over the two country's similar languages and history.

Sofia has refused to back the opening of accession talks between Skopje and the EU until North Macedonia recognises its tiny Bulgarian minority in the constitution. President Stevo Pendarovski and the ruling centre-left Social Democrats (SDSM) are prepared to make the amendments but lack the numbers to win a parliamentary vote.

The opposition VMRO-DPMNE party refuses to budge, saying any constitutional changes can come after North Macedonia joins the EU, a stance the government says is unrealistic.

The first round of the presidential vote puts the two opposing views on the ballot, with Pendarovski in danger of being unseated by Gordana Siljanovska-Davkova, who is backed by the right-wing VMRO-DPMNE.

Recycled 'zombie' misinformation targets US voters

MIGRANTS, vaccines, pedophilia rings — old conspiracy theories are resurfacing ahead of the US election despite being repeatedly debunked, in what researchers call "zombie" falsehoods that appear to resonate with polarized voters.

Americans are deluged with misinformation about political hot-button issues that observers say have the potential to sway voters in the widely anticipated rematch between President Joe Biden and Donald Trump in November.

That includes misinformation that is recycled online despite being repeatedly knocked down by fact-checkers in what seems like a never-ending game of whack-a-mole.

The trend illustrates the ability of long-debunked falsehoods to mutate into viral political discourse on social media platforms, which now offer fewer guardrails as they scale back content moderation.

"This type of misinformation gets repeated so often that it eventually becomes the gospel truth to believers," Mike Rothschild, an expert on conspiracy theories, told AFP. — AFP

Solomon Islands PM's party wins most seats in parliamentary election: report

In the recent parliamentary election in the Solomon Islands, Prime Minister Manasseh Sogavare's party, the Ownership, Unity, and Responsibility Party (Our Party), emerged as the frontrunner, securing 15 out of 50 seats in the new parliament. However, no single party or coalition managed to secure an overall majority.

THE party led by Solomon Islands' incumbent Prime Minister Manasseh Sogavare won most seats in the country's parliamentary election, with no party or political coalition garnering an overall majority, national broadcaster SIBC reported on Wednesday local time.

The Ownership, Unity and Responsibility Party (or Our Party) led by Sogavare won 15 seats out of 50 in the new parliament, according to SIBC.

The opposition Coalition for Accountability Reform and Empowerment (CARE), which consists of the Solomon Islands Democratic Party (eight seats), the Democratic Alliance Party (four seats) and UMI for Change Party (one seat), had 13 seats altogether.

The Solomon Islands United Party secured seven members while the Solomon Islands People First Party won three seats. The Kandere Party and the Solomon Islands Party for Rural Advancement each had one member.

Meanwhile, 10 independent candidates have been elected as members of parliament.

A total of 334 candidates vied for 50 seats in the parliamentary election, which was held on last Wednesday. Party-affiliated candidates outnumbered independent candidates by 219 to 115.

The formation of a new government is likely to hinge on coalition-building efforts between the major parties. Both the CARE coalition and Our Party may need to negotiate and form alliances with smaller parties or independent candidates to secure a majority in the parliament. — Xinhua

Haaland ruled out of Man City's crucial trip to Brighton

MANCHESTER City's Premier League title bid suffered a blow after Norway striker Erling Haaland was ruled out of Thursday's crucial clash at Brighton.

Haaland missed City's 1-0 win over Chelsea in the FA Cup semi-final at Wembley on Saturday due to a muscle injury sustained in the Champions League quarter-final exit against Real Madrid last week.

City's leading scorer, who has 20 Premier League goals this season, is yet to recover and will not make the trip to the Amex Stadium as the champions look to close the gap on leaders Arsenal. City boss Pep Guardiola insisted Haaland's injury was not serious and he could come back into contention in time for Sunday's game against Nottingham

Forest. While Haaland is sidelined, Guardiola was boosted by England internationals Phil Foden and John Stones getting the green light to face Brighton after their own fitness concerns. — AFP

RISK OF SAILING

Philippines bans deployment of Filipino seafarers on ships transiting Red Sea, Gulf of Aden

THE Philippine government Wednesday banned the deployment of Filipino seafarers on passenger and cruise ships transiting the Red Sea and the Gulf of Aden due to the risk of sailing in those regions. The Department of Migrant Workers (DMW) issued the order after 23 Filipino sailors were either killed or taken hostage in recent months.

"The move comes after recent amendments to the International Transport Workers' Federation and International Bargaining Forum list of 'high-risk areas' and 'war-like zones' to include the Red Sea and the Gulf of Aden," the order said.

The DMW added that the order also results from collective discussions between its office and the Philippine Maritime Industry Tripartite Council, in which they "underscore the urgent need for stricter protocols to ensure the safety of Filipino seafarers navigating the Red Sea and the Gulf of Aden."

The DMW requires licensed manning agencies to sign an "affirmation letter" guaranteeing that the vessels their seafarers board will not navigate the Red Sea or the Gulf of Aden. "The stringent measure ensures a transparent process, fostering accountability and compliance with the new safety protocols," the DMW added. — Xinhua

Saint Petersburg hosts expo showcasing cybersecurity export products

For the first time, the event features leading Russian companies showcasing export products and information security (IS) technologies. Organized by the Security Council of the Russian Federation (SCRF), the meeting focuses on addressing IS challenges in a new multipolar world.

ON 23-25 April, Russia's Saint Petersburg is hosting the 12th International Meeting of High-Ranking Officials Responsible for Security Matters. This is the first time that the event has welcomed leading Russian companies demonstrating export products and information security (IS) technologies.

The event is organized under the auspices of the Security Council of the Russian Federation (SCRF) and is aimed to tackle issues around upholding IS within a new multipolar world.

In recent years, Russian companies have acquired unique experience in countering massive cyberattacks. Even under harsh sanctions and restrictions they have managed to protect Russia's federal, industrial, and financial infrastructure, the SCRF noted. All this happened "amid a sharply escalated geopolitical confrontation, a clear desire of major Western nations to maintain their economic and technological dominance, as well as against the backdrop of an unprecedented spike in aggressive cyber threats", the SCRF emphasized. — SPUTNIK
